The Drowning

The correct report of the drowning of Austin Carrington is as follows: About 11 o'clock yesterday morning the deceased, with Shultz and Searles went down to the river close to the camp for a swim The river here is some eighty feet wide and from twenty to thirty feet deep. They swam across once and after delaying a while started back. Searles sprang in first and reaching the other bank turned and saw that Carrington had stopped in the middle of REMEMBER that the payment of all the river and was apparently treading water. After a few moments Carring ton said "you'l have to come and help me." Otis Crocker, the mining man, of New York, and his companion, who have been absent for the past few days at the Cananeas, returned last evening. They were informed of the ning. They were informed of the burning of the Occidental at the custom house, and being anxious to "find out the fate of his valuables which he had left in the hotel, he took a short cut which he had driven over before. Upon reaching the river he drove into WP brand, range it, but found to his sorrow that it had ar above, owned changed materially. The horses began to swim and the buggy began to sink. Crocker and his companion stood up on the seat of the buggy and were just able to keep their heads above water. The horses succeeded in a few moments in reaching the opposite bank and the buggy and freight were none the worse for the swin, barring the thorough wetting of the two men. Mr. Crocker, after reaching Tombstone, made a search for his articles, which he supposed had been lost in the fire, and found his trunk and valises in perfect order in the store room. The trunk contained, besides the papers and clothing belonging to Mr. C., a draft for $3,000, which was found intact .- Prospector.

Governor Zulick in his report to the Secretary of the Interior, speaks as follows in reference to the agricultural possibilities of Arizona:

"The agricultural possibilities of Arizona can scarcely be overestimated. Nowhere on the continent can be found richer soil than in the valleys of the Colorado, Salt, Gila, San Pedro, Santa Cruz and Verde rivers. These rich bottom lands have a producing or tow. capacity not surpassed by any lands in the United States.

The United States land office certifies there are 2,000,000 acres of arable land in the valleys of the Colorado, Salt and Gila rivers. All that is required to make them yield abundantly is the artificial application of water. Water is in abundance in the rivers, and with ce and Casa the construction of canals and irrigating ditches every acre of this land will eventually be reclaimed.

Mr. Frank McKeon, a clever gentleman, of McKeon & Menken, who operate a restaurant, said it was a fact that he and Mr. Beyle held one-twentieth of ticket No. 53,469, the second capital prize of $100,000 in the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery. The prize came in good time as I needed the money badly, as you know I have had plenty of bad luck. We were burned out last fall. Another misfortune was losing $306 in a recent bank failure. TIMELY TOPICS CONSIDERED IN A and Described by Wide Awake Farmers-A Fodder Stand Worthy of Imitation-A Simple Corn Crib Ventilator.

Numbered with other seasonable farm conveniences that have been invented and tested by ingenious farmers is the one represented in the annexed cut. This is a device for drawing fodder or corn and fodder. Its great advantage, says the In-diana correspondent who described it in Rural New Yorker, is that a very large load can be put on it. It is also claimed for it that the for it that the contrivance can be conveniently loaded by one man, and that it is very cheap.

F is a piece of scantling two by four inches, spiked to the side pieces just in front of the hind standards, having a is attached to F by a five-eighth inch bolt dropped through the hole in the end of E and middle of F; the other end of E drags on the ground. The bottom of the bed is made of loose plank laid on the cross pieces B.

Take an armful of fodder, walk up the plank, lay it across the bed at the front end, put the next armful on top of the first with the butts in the opposite direc tion. Begin unloading at the hind end of the wagon, and continue to load till the space between the standards are full. In this way it is not necessary to step on the

The illustration is so plain as to require little discription. At the bottom of a crib a plank a foot wide is nailed, then pieces of joist four or five feet long are spiked to it. At the top a six inch plank is placed and laths are nalled at the sides. The crib is eight feet wide.

The popularity of the French ceach rse is rapidly increasing to meet the de-and for fine cosch horses in this country. A prominent experter of large carriage and coach horses said recently on the sub-ject: "My opinion and experience of twenty-five years in the handling and shipping of all kinds of horses is that there is one kind of horse that is profit able for the farmers to raise besides the here almost wholly neglected, and there never was such a scarcity as today of suitable geldings for the eastern markets and for export. breed yet introduced to America." C. M. Clay, of Kentucky, writing on the ery common belief that when sheep are led for mutton with the fleeces on them the mutton is rendered unpalatable on account of the wool taste, says it is all onsense about the wool affecting the taste of the meat. He explains that "the bad taste is caused by the excretions of the bowels going into the circulation when the sheep are killed that gives the wool flavor. The intestines must be taken out as quickly as possible; then you may wrap it in wool and lay it on the ice for days, and if there is any wool taste I will eat the sheep, skin, wool and all." Indi-

Andrew Johnson, who was elected vice president and became president of the United States, was a United States senator from Tennesses, serving from Dec. 7, 1857, until he was appointed by Presi-dent Lincoln to be military governor of Tennessee, March 4, 1862.

The Benefits of Salt. Dr. Jacobi maintains that salt is necessary in milk as well as vegetables, for sick or well, and especially for children. Its action in the circulation is evell understood; it en-hances the vital processes, mainly by accelerating tissue changes through the climination of more urea and carbonic acid; it prevents the solid coagulation of milk by either remet or gastric juice. The cow's milk ought never to be given without table salt, and the latter ought to be added to a woman's milk when it behaves like cow's

Red Tape Bureau. "Red Tape Bureau" means any depart-nent where business is transacted through a regular routine. The term refers to official formality, and it is so called from the red tape used in public offices for tying up of-ficial documents. The "Red Tape Bureau" is synonymous with the "Circumlocution Office" in Dickens' "Little Dorrit," which he describes as the chief of "public in the art of perceiving how not to do it."

The Oldest European Tongue. The oldest European language is that spoken in the Basque provinces in Spain, and also in Navarra. It is called the Basque language, and is spoken by about 600,000 French and Spanish people. It cannot be classed with any Indo-European or Semitic tongue, and appears to be of earlier origin, presenting some grammatical analogies with Mongol, North American and certain East African languages.
